DAILY DISPATCH.

RICHMOND, VA., TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 7, 1874.

JUDGE FITZHUGH REFUSES TO GRANT AN INJUNCTION TO PREVENT THE USE OF LOCOMOTIVES.ON BROAD STREET.

THE BROAD STREET QUESTION.

In the Chancery Court of Richmond yesterday morning, Judge Fitzhugh delivered the opinion of the Court in the case of the Broad street Association, or Miller and Present: Messrs. Forrester, Kellam, Lipsothers, versus the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Company, as follows: When this case was before me on an appli cation for an injunction in June last, after mature deliberation I decided, for reasons Ordway, indefinitely postponed. set forth in a written opinion, that the motion for an injunction should stand over until the question of right should be established at law in the case of the city of Richmond against the railroad company then pending

Since that opinion was rendered the case at law has been decided. And it appears that the Circuit Court has affirmed the judgment below. See copy of the judgment, dated June 29, 1874, and another order war the cushious were all taken out and of the same court, in the same case, made given to the Confederacy. The church has July 2, 1874. The judgment of aftirmance was suspended for ninety days at the instance of the railroad company in order to enable it to apply for a writ of supersedeas to the judgment. The plaintiffs in this case present a copy of the judgment and renew the motion for an injunction.

After the best consideration I have been able to give to this motion, I am of opinion that the reasons which influenced me to decline to grant the injunction, as I did when it was originally asked for, still exist in all their force.

I do not think this court should interfere while the judgment settling the legal right that is not with me is against me," and his is suspended. It ought not to regard a sermon was one of the finest ever delivered judgment which is suspended by the court is suspended. It ought not to regard a in this city. The cushions are all covered with erimson rep goods of fine quality, and the effect is very striking. The church has been re-carpeted throughout, the pulpit stand being covered with a superior quality of Brussels. The painting has also been very well done, and the church is now in a splendid condition. One of the greatest improvements is the alteration in the centre gas-jets. They having been rearranged, the church is now flooded with a sett and beautiful light. At night Dr. Dun-
